Getty Images Bennie Fowler, who played on the Dallas Cowboys Super Bowl team of 1970, told the Dallas Morning News that Dallas' roster is getting older and that the defense is getting worse. "You're talking about an aging defense," Fowler told the newspaper. "It's not getting any younger. We've got a lot of guys who have been here a while, and in our division, there is one team that will win the Super Bowl. And for the guys on our team, that's when the payday starts." How are the Cowboys going to respond? They signed free agent linebacker and defensive lineman Bruce Carter, who is 24 years old. For guys like Fowler, Carter's age is a good sign. "I think he's a player that will fit in and help," Fowler said. "He's a true player. He's got a natural feel for the game, for the linebacker position, and he's physical. He plays big. He's kind of a grinder
